

WYSTAN CURNOW

TEXT FOR A CUL·DE·SAC

converging paths from the shore    berms kerbs    tightened in the narrow limits    dig the ditches connecting the valleys    entrenched on the party    given one of etymology's    suburbs will create along the path that descends    access denied    many pitfalls    in the direction of Milan by Annency and to Vienna in Dauphine by Seyssel    hypothesis takes into account the vocation of the place    prospect from bulwarks    tightened in the narrow limits    if you are flying over the suburbs    back streets    some of them communicate passages stolen and thinking labyrinthine courses and endless aisles often private and therefore insulated from the prying eyes as many hidden treasures, stunned    lying integrated into the city    for historians still incomplete    belonging to a masonry quadrangle around a courtyard bordered by porticos beneath houses    see roads that look like trees while neighbourhoods of the empire are abandoned    again behind a wall, clenched    dispute resolution    look inward at the donut hole of plants in the middle overlooking the stone square    safety has always been a big selling point    in these times a livestock market at the location    subject of numerous    overpasses    still incomplete    some trouble finding my own house    a sad procession of lepers    another explanation for the etymology    open city back door out    but the culture is cul-de-sac    highway and byway    a quiet bourgeois life frolics hosted by the college    small neighbourhood of luxury    a snickelway is a narrow place to walk along    on the slopes east and south are two other high hospices    your car is no longer an instrument of freedom but a prosthetic device    so salt farmers in Geneva    hanker for a spot on dead-end streets bottom of the bag    pocket plaza    let us now volte face to consider the Palais de Justice    confusing mass of streets, stymied    stop anti-sprawl activists    access to housing was provided by a spiral staircase sometimes included in the building    pedestrian paths link roads    over one hundred newly gated communities    way out the way in shored up the terraced and triangular retaining shortcuts underpasses residents eventually learnt the routes restoration of channels criminals sentenced to public display one two three four five houses surrounding a circular drive popping wheelies and turning tricks combined with lintels in braces 'alley' is of French origin meaning 'way to go' judder bars or sleeping policemen lollipop-shaped streets quantities of these passages have disappeared but despair not we will follow one of them during our visit transit hubs pub snugs on city streets during urban warfare cul-de-sacs springing up from Calabasas to Chula Vista age three through eight it's great. Beyond that you're a captive a lone stone bench right up against it neighbourhoods of the empire are abandoned dikes drive bike paths hydraulic barricades defended Wall Street the New Urbanistas tightened in the narrow limits tiptoed in the dark and threatening Impasse Chaptal a new system for organizing connected cul-de-sacs, the Fused Grid 'why I did a poster for Geneva.' some trouble finding forcible passage in the beginning the ground floor included an arcade housing either store or shop craftsmen and a narrow gate opening onto a long corridor leading to a court in which one cultivates a garden bridges subways culverts sideroads afterwards explanations and descriptions will take place there LAPD's Operation Cul-de-Sac barricades a barrio in the Valley 1900 miles of alleyways in Chicago spatially a type of enclave my own house generally unwalkable asphalt bars the way as with 'a barricade formed of the resultant debris as a wall came tumbling down' designation in words the kind of aggressive odour of the pork offal used for tricks expanding farther and father into the desert then forced to 'kiss the concrete' hundreds of years after another then without a trace trails lanes ditches drains the crenellated walls pierced by the three doors of St. Leger, St. Victor, and St. Antoine and an entries castle named Porta Latronum or Door of Thieves chokers speed humps Grand Guignol bottlenecked way in the way out off K' Road back street front yards align the lots limit the incidence of urban embolisms tiny 300 seater auditorium at the end of a sinister cul-de-sac in the Pigalle district to keep them isolated from one another Counts of Geneva subassociations may belong to masterassociations for the rest still incomplete, stymied or retrofit with cross streets volte face turn tail bridges subways culverts sideroads and the other thing we can hear are the birds to borrow design ideas from foreign embassies for terrorist-proof security rooms accessed through secret doors places infamous for their placelessness open country Roman wall of the third century all asphalt and sundry Pokrovsky Hills, Rancho Mirage, Metro Manila, Sanctuary Lakes, and Alphaville are raised berms the terror of the experience of the building itself 'armed response' signs dot the lawns traffic calming bolstered obeisance to the needs of the automobile expanding farther and farther into the desert back track down the thruway

WYSTAN CURNOW